

KURTZ PLAYGROUND DRIVE

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE PLAYGROUND WANTED.

Short Essays by Children of the High School on Advantages of Playground.

The Kurtz Playground Association are perfecting plans for a drive for funds at an early date, likely April 17, 18 and 19, for new features on the playground which will add greatly to the pleasure and play of our boys and girls. The baseball diamond must be improved and leveled at places. The tennis courts will have to be changed and made over. The association believes a pavilion should be erected for community sings and band concerts. A grandstand is wanted at the baseball field. One or more ball fields for the small boys are needed, and a swimming pool is considered a feature most desirable to have. These additions it has been estimated would cost about $4,000, and with these improvements backed by our people it is believed the playground will be used in larger measure by the children of the town.

The Compiler has offered three prizes of $1 each for the three best articles of about 200 words by the boys and girls of the two higher classes of High School on "The Advantages of the Playground." We are printing several articles this week and will print others next week and will then make the awards.

The Advantages of the Playground.

The Kurtz Playground is a valuable asset to Gettysburg. Not every town the size of Gettysburg can boast of having a public playground where all kinds of games can be played and other forms of recreation can be found.

Very few people get the full benefit to be derived from the playground. There are some very good tennis courts, but they are not used very much except by a few young people. This kind of exercise would be very beneficial to the older people but very few of them get it.

There is also a good baseball diamond on the playground but the High School team is about the only team which uses it regularly. This diamond could be used by everybody in town and thus give many of the town boys the physical development which they need.

The playground is an ideal place for children to spend their pastime. Swings and see-saws as well as other forms of amusements are sufficient to accommodate a large number of children. If there were some person to help direct them all kinds of games could be played and a good time be had by all of them.

Gettysburg has no Y. M. C. A., but it has a playground. Some towns do not have either. We should make the playground a place of recreation for everybody both young and old. Why not make a small park out of part of it? There is plenty of room for a small park. If the playground does not become a place of recreation for everybody it will not fulfil its purpose. To make it fulfil its aim the people must take a new interest in it and make it popular.

The Advantages of a Playground

What are the advantages of a playground? In speaking of a playground many people say it is an advantage to the children for they can go there and play. But do they think of the moral and physical advantages of such a place?

It is the early training of a child that influences its later life. So it is up to the parents to see that their children are brought up in the proper way. Not on the streets where they are sure to come in contact with the immoral phrases of the English language, but in a place where their better side will be developed. There is no place where this can be done more properly than on a playground. Where children are instructed in good clean sports and the proper way to have a good time. When we think that the children of to-day will be the citizens of to-morrow, it only increases the need for us to look into their social and moral welfare.

There is no reason why every child should not have a strong healthy body if he has the right physical training. It is said that you find the strong mind in the strong body. All the thinkers of the country are men physically perfect. So why not have the physical side of our child developed? It will at the same time develop their minds. No better physical development can be obtained than on a playground. It is the proper instruction.

I think a playground is a social advantage to a community. For it not only develops the physical and moral side of the children, but it makes them better citizens, and a help not a hindrance to the community.

"The Advantages of a Playground."

"There! I just knew it would be that way. I do wish we girls would have somewhere to go this afternoon for a swim or something."

"Oh, why I know let us all go out to the playground. I do think we could have lots of fun."

"Alright, I'll go you. I think the idea is a swell one. I can tell you all how that playground would be an advantage if we could only get a

VICTORY LOAN BEING GROOMED

To Hit a Successful Over the Top Pace in Adams County.

The organization of the Adams County Victory Loan Committee in town and county, with Dr. Wm. A. Granville as chairman, is about ready for the drive beginning April 21. The letter sent by Dr. Granville to all loan workers is receiving quick and hearty response. Assistance is asked for the last campaign, reminding that Adams county went over the top on the previous Liberty Loan campaign because the workers and other patriotic citizens were willing to devote time and energy to the cause. The workers are busy men but unless busy men put this campaign over it will not be done. The appeal is sounded to keep our record untarnished by sticking to our task until it is finished just as our soldier boys have done.

Throughout the whole length and breadth of our land there is no more patriotic people than those of Adams county. In the previous Liberty Loan campaign they cheerfully did their full duty and they will not fail us now. The people of Adams county have the money, the patriotism and the will to subscribe their full quota of the coming loan and they are going to do it.

The government has cancelled all its war contracts except its promise to the farmers that they would get the war price for the wheat harvested next summer. And so, while wheat is now selling about 90 cents per bushel in the open markets in Argentina, the farmers of Adams county are getting over two dollars per bushel. This means that more than half of the money they are getting will go for their wheat this year, is in the nature of a bonus, and Congress has just appropriated one billion dollars to cover the resulting loss.

John M. Mason and E. McClain Walters, representing the Treasury Department, and also managers of the Victory Loan in the Third Federal Reserve Banking District will be the speakers at a luncheon to be given by the Federal Reserve Bank at the Eagle Hotel, Monday, April 7, 6:30 P. M., to the representatives of the various banks in this county, the Speakers' Bureau and the Sub-Chairmen of the County Committee.

May 4 is to be Victory Liberty Loan Sunday to be observed as a special day of thanksgiving for victory. Every minister in the Third Federal Reserve District will be asked to co-operate to this and Ministerial unions will also be expected to participate. Sunday Schools and Bible classes will be requested to observe Victory Sunday, as the Easter season seems a fitting time for a day of rejoicing and thanksgiving.

Red Cross Home Service Busy.

It is a mistake to assert that the Red Cross work in Adams county is over, for the Home Service Department of the Red Cross, with office open every afternoon in the Central House, is as busy as ever. In the last thirty days there have been 15 calls at the office for information and many of them given what they desired. A number of checks have been located, two families have been assisted financially and telegrams and telephone calls have been answered, all involving some want or need of soldier and sailor families.

Oil Stove Starts Fire.

A fire, which started from an oil stove on the second floor of the house of Joseph Krichen, Brantown at 4 P. M. last Saturday, damaged all the furnishings on the first floor of the house in which the fire started. Mr. Krichen threw the blazing stove into the yard and shouted for help. A bucket brigade was formed by neighbors, who put out the fire before the arrival of the McSherrystown Fire Company, some one having phoned an alarm to the neighboring town. The loss is covered by insurance.

Eckenrode Sentenced.

W. E. Eckenrode, of Gettysburg, charged with the theft of the automobile of John Dubs, in Hanover, last September, plead guilty in the York county court and was given an indeterminate sentence of from 8 months to three years in the penitentiary. Eckenrode is also charged with stealing the auto of James S. H. of Fairfield. Both autos were recovered.

Hoffman Orphanage Additions.

Additions are to be made at the Hoffman Orphanage during the summer. It is expected that a large number of children will be received in part at least by the erection of another two-story cottage and a school building.

Farmers' Bank Association.

The Adams County Farmers' Bank Association, as a branch of the Federal Loan Bank of Baltimore has become an established fact. The first of April saw all requirements completed. At least ten farmers were required to become members and borrowers and more than the necessary number entered into the association so that the branch is now officially established and open for new members upon application.

PAVED STREETS IN SIGHT

FIRST STEPS TAKEN UNDER NEW LAW PASSED THIS YEAR.

It Looks Better Than Hopes For Future of Chambersburg and York Streets.

The amendment to the Sproul Good Roads Law of 1911, passed by the Legislature since beginning of year permits of paved streets in boroughs built by State with help of the borough and abutting property owners.

It is the aim of Highway Commissioner Sadler to maintain the Lincoln Highway at the highest standard. This highway made a name above all others as a military road in transportation of trucks and supplies and this is one of the roads State and Nation will seek to maintain at the highest efficiency. The road next in importance from the same point of view will be what has been named the National Highway which will run from New England to Florida. These highways will cross in Gettysburg.

The link of the Lincoln Highway through Gettysburg, down York street to Chambersburg street, down York street to the bridge under the new act is proposed to be rebuilt by the State Highway Commissioner with the best of up-to-date paved roadway eighteen feet wide, and the State will erect at the same time the remaining eighteen feet of our streets, if the borough will provide for the payment of the same.

The Town Council at its regular meeting on Tuesday evening by a unanimous vote decided to have the State build Chambersburg street from the McGuigan corner to the Square and down York street to Fourth street, the remaining portions to borough limits to the State, a distance of about three quarters of a mile. A committee of councilmen, Oyer, Dougherty and Hartman, to confer with the State Highway Commissioner who will be allowed to decide the kind of street to be built. It is believed that if abutting property owners will pay two-thirds of the cost and borough one-third, that the finances of the borough will permit of the building of the portion of the Lincoln Highway as indicated and also of building a portion along the National Highway which would include Carlisle street, Baltimore street and Steinwehr avenue.

This plan should commend itself to every citizen, for it would add greatly to the health of the community by eliminating much of the dust nuisance and at the present figures for the best of paved streets, and figures which would have a tendency to fall should be about $4 for a thirty foot lot. The material the town would get off these main streets ought to put every street in town in good condition.

Boost Paved Street Plans.

The Town Council decided to confer with the State Highway Commissioner, who will be allowed to decide the kind of street to be built. It is believed that if abutting property owners will pay two-thirds of the cost and borough one-third, that the finances of the borough will permit of the building of the portion of the Lincoln Highway as indicated and also of building a portion along the National Highway which would include Carlisle street, Baltimore street and Steinwehr avenue.

Stock and Vegetable Clubs.

This week a drive is being made through a number of the rural schools of Adams county to secure the organization of stock and vegetable clubs. The idea is to interest the children, who will have their products ready for local exhibits next fall. After these local exhibits the winners will come to Gettysburg and enter a county competition. During the week of the teachers' institute, the speakers at the meetings have been E. G. McBride, of State College; H. F. Hershey, county farm agent; and Prof. H. M. Roth, county school superintendent.

Stone for the foundation is being hauled and the actual work on the foundation is expected to start next week.

ROCK CRUSHES OUT LIFE

BURIED UNDER A TWENTY-FIVE TON ROCK.

Two Young Soldiers of the County Make Supreme Sacrifice, One in France.

William G. Chronister, of York Co., while working as a laborer on farm of John L. Bosserman of Reading township, was instantly killed at 2 P. M. Tuesday afternoon, when caught under a falling rock, being crushed to death. Mr. Chronister was assisting John L. Bosserman, a farmer, in burying a 25-ton rock when the rock, which was partially undermined, fell, burying the man beneath it. The rock was on the verge of a 15-foot hole, which the men were digging for the purpose of burying it, when the earth gave way, before Mr. Chronister could escape from the pit. Mr. Bosserman had gone for water and was returning when 35 feet from the hole he saw the earth give way and the boulder topple in on Chronister. He summoned aid and Dr. Eugene Elgin, of East Berlin, was sent for. Fifty men worked with jacks and picks for four hours in getting the body from beneath the rock. Mr. Chronister lived near Bigmont, where the body was taken by A. B. Trimmer, undertaker, of East Berlin. Mr. Chronister is survived by his wife, and two young children. One brother and four sisters also survive. They are: Mrs. Adam Naylor, of Kralltown; Mrs. Asabom Deardorff, of York; Mrs. Samuel Deardorff, and Mrs. S. Altland, of Davisburg.

Corporal Charles Diehl, of Gettysburg, died at Camp Ogleshorpe, Ga., from meningitis of the brain aged 22 years and five months. Last October Corporal Diehl contracted influenza and was taken to the hospital at Camp Ogleshorpe where he remained until his death. During the latter part of January he received a furlough to visit his home but even then he had not been discharged from the hospital on account of high fever. On March 21 his father, Levi Diehl, visited Camp Ogleshorpe and found out that there were only slight chances for his son's recovery. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Diehl, of Hanover St., two brothers, Earl of Pottsville, and Howard, of Gettysburg; and two sisters, Madeline and Lillian, both at home.

Joseph Williams, son of William Williams, colored, whose home is along the Taneytown road, is reported by the War Department as killed in action on the battlefields of France. Williams had sent no word from France since October and his parents feared that he had fallen in one of the big drives. He left here with the first colored contingent during the summer of 1917.

Richard Henry Monroe, colored, a veteran of the Civil War, respected for his many good qualities, died from a complication of diseases at his home on South Washington St., Tuesday, aged 72 years. He was a member of Co. E and U. S. Colored Troops in the Civil War. Besides his wife he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Rebecca Coleman, Mrs. Edna Baker, and Mrs. Mary Ann, all of Gettysburg; and a son, John, of York. Burial will be in the Colored Cemetery.

Miss Annie Artberger, of York, died at the Chambersburg Hospital early Sunday morning in her 78th year.

Miss Annie Artberger spent the greater part of her life at the Chambersburg Hospital, where she was employed as a nurse. She was a member of the York County Sunday School Association and was a very active worker in the church. She is survived by her husband, Mr. Artberger, and several children.

MILLER HAS FOUR HOURS OFF.

Caught in McSherrystown Hotel After Exciting Chase.

John Miller, who escaped from jail last Friday afternoon as Compiler was going to press, had about four hours of liberty, when he was caught at the National Hotel in McSherrystown. He left the jail after 2 o'clock and at 8 o'clock was back in jail, after a lot of excitement over the escape.

According to Miller, one Raymond Konley, at the jail, furnished him with the hack saw with which he saved his way to freedom. There was supposed to be three locks on his door, but these locks held the same bar and by sawing at the right place the three locks could be removed. There is a door from the corridor, usually kept locked, but Miller said once out of his cell he simply walked out through all the doors, through the hall of the residence part, and taking from the Sheriff's office a revolver and a ring, he went down High street, through the old graveyard and playground until he reached East Confederate Avenue and then went to Rock Creek and then across country to the Bonneauville road. He went through Bonneauville and from there came the first intimation of the direction he had taken. Over his uniform he wore old trousers spattered with lime and a coat with sleeve badly torn and this description tallied with Miller as he went through Bonneauville. Reaching McSherrystown he entered the National Hotel and sat down on a chair in the bar room. A call was sent to Chief of Police Crabbs, of Hanover, that Miller was there and Crabbs with State Policeman Tipton and County Detective Wilson rushed out to McSherrystown. One of the officers went to the rear and the other two entered from the front and Miller was found sitting in a chair tilted back against the wall smoking a cigarette, and put up no fight when Crabbs put the nippers on him. Miller had the small steel saw with which he sawed his way to liberty in his shoe. He surrendered on demand the stolen revolver and saw.

With Mills on the road to recovery Miller evidently has some idea of the position in which he has placed himself, as he remarked as he left the McSherrystown hotel for the jail, "Well, here I go for about thirty years."

With two prisoners in jail found guilty of murder of the first degree, and with the offer of the County Commissioners to place guards at the jail day and night, and with offer as yet unaccepted by the sheriff, the entire responsibility for the escape and the future safe-keeping of all prisoners is upon the sheriff. The guards should be at the jail for it is a building from which one escape after another has been made and there should be no miscarriage of justice for the punishment of the crimes which have shocked this place.

TEN DISTRICTS HAVE HONOR NAMES AND SPONSORS FOR LIBERTY SHIPS

These Pennsylvania Women Will Christen Four New Merchant Vessels.

Lower Right—Miss Charlotte Kent Skinner, Lewistown.

Ten of the twenty sub-districts of the Third Federal Reserve District entitled by their successes in the Fourth Loan to name honor ships, have chosen the names and the sponsors and are making great preparations for the launchings.

In each case the selection has been the means of stimulating interest in the forthcoming Victory Liberty Loan. The ceremonies incidental to the launchings will be made opening features of the new loan drive.

Nine of the districts which have selected names and sponsors are in Pennsylvania. The other is in Delaware. It is required in each case that the prefix "Liberty" be a part of the name. There is also a ruling that the name of a person, living or dead, cannot be used.

This is to prevent duplication of names which would lead to confusion once the ships are in service. A few districts have chosen personal names but will have another selection.

Among the Pennsylvania districts Lebanon county has chosen the name "Quit-pallia." This is the Indian name of a small stream in the county and signifies "Snake Harbor." Its banks were once infested with snakes. The sponsor for the merchantman will be Miss Fanny Coleman, of Mt. Lebanon.

Chester county has selected the name "Chester Valley." Mrs. Philip Lipkin, of Coatesville, chairman of the women's committee, will be the ship's sponsor.

"Delco" is the name suggested for Delaware county. It is derived from a combined abbreviation of the words "Delaware County." The ship will be baptized by Miss Marian Lynch, of Chester.

The Bethlehem District has also selected a coined name. Its ship will be christened "Bethlehem" from a contraction of the names "Bethlehem" and "Northampton." Mrs. Archibald Johnston, wife of the Mayor of Bethlehem, will bestow the name.

Montgomery county south chose the name "Paul Jones," but will have to substitute another. The sponsor for the ship will be Miss Helen J. C. Taylor, of Melrose Park.

The Lackawanna, Susquehanna and Wayne District favors recognition of its chairman, C. S. Weston, of Scranton, and it left to its own choice would name the ship "Weston." Mrs. W. H. Storrs, of Scranton, will christen the ship for this district.

The name "Kishacoquillas," derived from the Indian name of a valley in the county, has been selected by Mifflin. In English this name means "Singing Waters." Miss Charlotte Kent Skinner, daughter of the county chairman, will sponsor the ship.

"Liberty Land" is the name to be bestowed upon the Main Line (Montgomery county) ship. The sponsor selected is Mrs. Norton Downs, widow of an aviator who lost his life while on high duty over the English Channel.

Lycoming county will bestow its own name upon the honor ship. "Lycoming" is of Indian origin and signifies "sandy stream." Mrs. Garrett Cochran, widow of Lieut. Cochran, 107th Field Artillery, will name the ship.

New Castle, Delaware, will name its ship "Liberty-Brandywine." Mrs. Pierre S. Dupont, of Wilmington, has been chosen as sponsor.

Launching dates will be announced from Washington after appropriate names have been approved. Merchant ships now being completed at Delaware River yards will be designated to receive the names.

GERMAN HELMETS AS LOAN PRIZES

These Full Dress Headpieces Were Intended For the Adornment of the Hun Army That Captured Paris, But They Got There by Freight.

Eighty-five thousand German helmets, captured by Allied troops in Coblenz, are to be awarded as prizes by Federal district committees in the Victory Liberty Loan Campaign.

In the picture shown above, taken on the Treasury steps in Washington, may be seen a number of the helmets just unpacked from the cases in which they arrived from Germany. Frank R. Wilson, director of Loan publicity, created a panic in the helmet market by buying the entire $5,000 allotment from the War Department for $1. It cost the German government more than that amount to manufacture each one of the helmets.

These helmets were a special supply held in reserve for a triumphal entry into Paris. Eventually they arrived there by freight.

OBTAIN PASTURE ON DITCH BANKS

Waste Space Is Frequently Source of Much Trouble and Financial Loss.

HOW IDAHO MAN MADE MONEY

Lambs Gained at Rate of 264.5 Pounds Per Acre Pastured—in Addition Animals Did Excellent Job in Cleaning Up.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Bingham county (Idaho) farm bureau has urged every farmer, during the past year, to utilize all irrigation ditch banks. On irrigated farms of from 80 to 160 acres it has been estimated that the ditches take up from 3 to 12 acres. This not only reduces the cultivated areas, but is frequently a source of much trouble and financial loss, inasmuch as the farm ditches are likely to become a mass of sweet clover, willows and weeds, and the natural breeding place of injurious insects, such as alfalfa weevils, false chinch bugs and grasshoppers.

Made Ditch Bank Pay.

One man has made his ditch bank pay well. He has an 80-acre farm, through which there is a ditch 1,354 feet long and ten feet wide. In 1917 the ditch bank and an adjoining strip of alfalfa embracing one and one-half acres were fenced off and used to pasture a number of registered Hampshire ewes and lambs, the sheep being run on it on alternate two weeks. The actual pasture area of the ditch bank and alfalfa patch was 4.13 acres. The result of the first year showed that this pasture would carry 120 head of sheep each alternate two weeks, or an average of 14 head continuously.

Profit From Lambs.

In August 43 lambs, weighing a total of 2,178.5 pounds or an average of 50.7 pounds per head, were turned on one-third acre of this ditch bank pasture, which had been cut off with a temporary fence. The pasture at that time consisted of a rank growth of

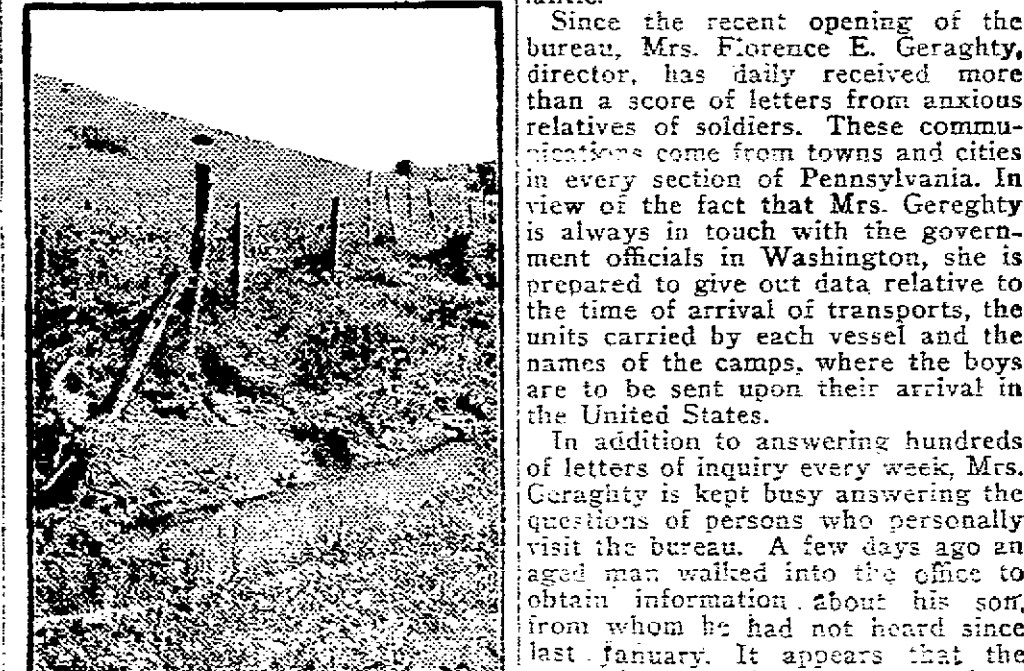

Realizing that it would be utterly impossible for the Government authorities in Washington to answer all the letters of inquiry relative to the sailing of the soldiers, the Emergency Aid, co-operating with the War Camp Community Service, decided to establish a bureau to keep friends and relatives posted regarding the date of arrival of the different regiments at ports along the Atlantic.

Since the recent opening of the bureau, Mrs. Florence E. Geraghty, director, has daily received more than a score of letters from anxious relatives of soldiers. These communications come from towns and cities in every section of Pennsylvania. In view of the fact that Mrs. Geraghty is always in touch with the government officials in Washington, she is prepared to give out data relative to the time of arrival of transports, the units carried by each vessel and the names of the camps, where the boys are to be sent upon their arrival in the United States.

In addition to answering hundreds of letters of inquiry every week, Mrs. Geraghty is kept busy answering the questions of persons who personally visit the bureau. A few days ago an aged man walked into the office to obtain information about his son, from whom he had not heard since last January. It appears that the young hero had been separated from his regiment, following his release from a German prison camp. He was then placed in Casual Company 937. When the father was informed that this Casual Company was scheduled to arrive at Hoboken that day, he warmly thanked Mrs. Geraghty for her kindness and said he would at once proceed to Hoboken.

Recently Mrs. Geraghty received a letter from a man in Tyrone who said that his son had expected to sail several weeks ago. Mrs. Geraghty ascertained that the soldier in question, who was a member of the 133rd Field Artillery, was due to arrive on the Rijdam at Newport News on March 21st. The day before the vessel reached this country the father of the hero telephoned Mrs. Geraghty to say that he was on his way to Newport News.

Besides furnishing information about the soldiers, the bureau also helps the out-of-town visitors to obtain rooms and board, while in Philadelphia awaiting the arrival of transports.

blue grass, white clover, willows and weeds. The 43 lambs were held on this area for 15 days and harvested the growth rather than pastured it. The result showed the lambs gained at the rate of 264.5 pounds per acre pastured, which at 14 cents a pound would amount to a return of $37.05 an acre.

No more labor was required in building the temporary fence than it would have required to cut the willows and weeds. In addition to the profit returned the lambs did an excellent job in cleaning up the ditch banks.

NEWS OF YOUR SOLDIER.

How to Find Out His Sailing and Arriving Port.

Hundreds of heroic Pennsylvania soldiers have been welcomed by relatives at the ports of New York, Philadelphia, and Newport News upon their return from overseas during the last few weeks, as a result of the work of the free information bureau maintained at the headquarters of the Emergency Aid of Pennsylvania at 1428 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

Realizing that it would be utterly impossible for the Government authorities in Washington to answer all the letters of inquiry relative to the sailing of the soldiers, the Emergency Aid, co-operating with the War Camp Community Service, decided to establish a bureau to keep friends and relatives posted regarding the date of arrival of the different regiments at ports along the Atlantic.

OVERCOMING DIFFICULTIES IN STARTING GASOLINE ENGINE DURING COLD WEATHER

A Motortruck on the Farm—A Typical Gas Engine That Requires Skill for Most Efficient Operation.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is important that engine operators familiarize themselves with the bad effects produced on gas engines by cold weather and with the easiest ways of overcoming them, for with such knowledge it is comparatively easy to start a gas engine in the severest weather.

The cold affects starting in three ways: (1) It makes it harder to crank the engine, because the oil congeals on the bearings and around the piston and valves. (2) Where a dry battery is used it weakens the spark. (3) It causes gasoline to vaporize very slowly or not at all, therefore makes it difficult to obtain a mixture of gas and air which can be ignited by the spark.

The congealing of the oil is not usually a very serious difficulty, although it may necessitate a great deal more effort in cranking the engine. A little gasoline or kerosene on all bearings which can be reached will help, and a liberal priming of gasoline in the cylinder will tend to thin the oil around the piston as well as aid in obtaining a good mixture, as noted below.

Do Not Use Kerosene. Kerosene will interfere with the forming of a combustible mixture. Also where gasoline or kerosene has been used on bearings to make cranking easier, the engine should not be put under a load until the bearings have had time to get well lubricated again with good oil.

The effect of cold on the ignition system will be noticeable only where dry cells are used, with the exception that where the engine is equipped with a timer which is oil, the congealing of the oil may interfere with the contact of the timer, in which case a little kerosene or gasoline may be necessary to thin the oil. When dry cells are cold they become less active, and at extremely low temperatures they will cease giving current. Therefore a dry battery should be kept in a warm place during the winter when not in use, so as to be active when needed. If this has not been done it should be set in a warm place for several minutes before attempting to start the motor in cold weather.

Never warm a battery by applying intense heat directly to the cells, but allow them to warm slowly. While in operation they will generate sufficient heat to keep them active. With cells which have been sealed in paraffin or other wax, care should be exercised not to expose them to a temperature high enough to melt the wax.

Cold Retards Vaporizing.

The most serious effect of cold weather on gas engine operation is attributable to the fact that cold retards the vaporizing of the fuel. Gasoline as a liquid will not burn; it must first be turned into a vapor and this vapor mixed with a certain amount of air. A thin spray of gasoline in warm air will quickly turn to a vapor and mix with the surrounding air, but at low temperatures a considerable part of such a spray will remain a liquid, hence will not make an explosive mixture. The remedy is obvious. A greater quantity of gasoline must be furnished so as to give off more vapor in order to make a mixture rich enough to be combustible, or the air must be heated so the gasoline will vaporize more readily, or a combination of these expedients must be tried.

If the weather is only moderately cold, it is usually sufficient to prime the engine in some way, that is, inject a small quantity of gasoline (about a spoonful) into the cylinder, ordinarily either through a petcock or priming plug, in order that more fuel may be present, hence more vapor. Whenever an engine is primed, a short time should be allowed for the fuel to vaporize and mix with the air before attempting to crank the engine. If this is not done the vapor will pass out a little at a time through the exhaust valve as the engine is cranked, and the priming will not serve its purpose.

Heat Must Be Applied.

In very cold weather, however, priming with ordinary commercial gasoline will sometimes be insufficient, and heat must be applied by some means in order to produce vaporization of the fuel, unless a more volatile fuel is used for priming. A very satisfactory way to apply heat is to put some hot water into the cooling system, thus warming the cylinders and assisting in vaporizing the gasoline that is drawn in with the charge or injected as priming. In this case, also, the engine should be allowed to stand a few minutes to permit the gasoline to vaporize. It is not necessary that the entire cooling system be filled with hot water; if enough is used to heat the cylinders so the engine will start, cold water may then be added until the radiator is full. This method, of course, will be practicable only with small or medium-sized engines; with some of the larger sizes of tractors the amount of hot water usually available will have little effect used in this way.

If only a little hot water is available, it may be more effective if poured slowly over the intake manifold, and the carburetor as well, if the carburetor is covered so no water can enter it. A very effective way of heating the intake manifold is to wrap a cloth around it and pour the hot water over the cloth, or dip the cloth in hot water and then wrap it around the manifold.

If the manifold can be heated it will warm the air that touches it as it enters the engine; this warm air will cause the gasoline spray which it carries to vaporize. As a greater proportion of the air passing through a small pipe comes in contact with the walls of the pipe than in the case of a large one, this method works best with engines having a comparatively small manifold. When depending upon heat from the manifold to warm the air, the engine should be cranked fairly rapidly, so as not to allow the warmed mixture to remain long in contact with the cold walls of the combustion chamber and so cause the vapor to condense into liquid again.

There are frequently occasions when an engine must be started in cold weather under conditions where hot water cannot be obtained, and in such cases some other means of applying heat must be used. Some people make use of a blowtorch to apply the heat to the intake manifold, or, by removing a spark plug or igniter block, heat the combustion chamber itself.

Open Flame Not Favored. The use of an open flame around a gas engine at ordinary temperatures is not to be recommended, on account of the possibility of fire. It always introduces an element of danger.

One of the most effective methods of starting a cold engine, and one absolutely safe, is to remove the spark plug (or igniter block) and heat it in a fire or in the flame of a blowtorch, then the engine, and then quickly replace the spark plug. The charge is almost sure to ignite. A drop or two of gasoline put on the inside of the plug just before replacing it insures the presence of vaporized fuel near the spark when the engine is cranked.

Where, for any reason, it is impracticable or inadvisable to apply heat in any of the ways indicated, it may be possible to heat a piece of metal pipe the size of the air intake of the carburetor then place this so the air entering the carburetor must pass through it. This is nearly as effective as a heated manifold. Such a pipe may be made red-hot if desired.

Provide Volatile Fuel.

Another means of starting engines in cold weather, which is practiced to a considerable extent, is to provide some very volatile fuel with which to prime it, either of "high-test" gasoline being perhaps most commonly used. As these will vaporize at lower temperatures than ordinary commercial gasoline, they make it easier to obtain a combustible mixture. In using either, care must be exercised not to use too much, as dangerous pressures may be created because of the rapidity with which it burns. In many cases it is mixed with about equal parts of gasoline. There is no danger in the use of the high-test gasoline. It is not quite so effective as ether, because it is less volatile, but it is being used with entire satisfaction by a great many engine owners.

Good as Weed Killer.

As a weed killer sweet clover seems unrivaled by any plant we have, except hemp.

HERE GOES THE "FINISHING 5TH"

Counties Make Early Start on Victory Loan Work.

With the Victory Liberty Loan drive still several weeks distant many of the counties of the Third Federal Reserve District are splendidly organized and are prepared to make the "Finishing Fifth" the most enthusiastic campaign of the series.

One or more group meetings have been held by several of the Pennsylvania county groups. At each meeting there has been an expression of confidence in the ability of the Loan organizations to put the Loan over. It is generally admitted that there is need of advance hustling to revive patriotic interest, but no one doubts that the public will respond to the right kind of Loan appeal.

As evidence of the interest that is already being taken in the Loan and the work that has been begun, the following news paragraphs are noteworthy:

LOAN "PEP" AT READING

Six Counties Made a Good Start in Joint Conference.

Six counties were represented at a conference at Reading to formulate plans for the Victory Liberty Loan campaign. Daniel W. Kaercher, of Pottsville, representative of Group B of the State Advisory Committee, presided and urged a spirited drive. The counties in the group are Lebanon, Northampton, Lehigh, Northumberland, Schuylkill and Berks.

Campaign plans were outlined by E. McLean Watters, State chairman of the Advisory Committee. An interchange of speakers by the various counties during the drive may be arranged. This is to introduce new arguments. Publicity features were discussed, including spectacular flights by aeroplanes and a dirigible balloon. A distribution of German helmets, cartridges and also medals made of captured German cannon is planned. The medals are for the Loan volunteers.

Addresses were made by E. J. Fox, Northampton chairman and former Supreme Court Judge; Rev. J. L. Hynson, of Lebanon; Miss Anna Grimm, Lehigh; Miss Frances Kaercher, Mrs. Lewis Anehalt and Daniel Duffy, of Schuylkill.

'LEND OR BE TAXED' THE ISSUE

Chairman Hersh Stirs York Rally With Blunt Facts.

"Will we lend our money to pay the nation's just debts, or will we force the government to take the money from us in taxation?" is the way Grier Hersh, county chairman, placed the Victory Loan issue before the county workers at a big Loan rally in the Colonial Hotel at York.

Benjamin H. Ludlow, State chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the Victory Loan Committee of Pennsylvania, delivered an address, in which he imparted to the workers present helpful suggestions for the campaign.

These slogans are being used locally: "The next national election is in November, 1920. This is a Victory Loan campaign."

"The first four Loans took 'em over, now the fifth one brings 'em back."

Guests of the York county Victory Loan Committee present were: J. E. Bacon, Philadelphia, director of supplies; George E. Lloyd, Carlisle, district chairman of the speakers' bureau; Rev. H. B. Stock, chairman speakers' bureau, Cumberland county; Rev. A. R. Stock, Rev. M. Plummer, H. Hall Sharp, Prof. John Henry, J. C. Wagner and Pisk Goodyear, Carlisle.

MONTGOMERY NORTH IS READY

Gabel, vice chairman; Roy Huber, publicity chairman; Theodore Lane Bean, speakers' chairman, and Morgan P. Hunter, secretary.

Headquarters for the Central committee are located in Norris town, in the Beyer Arcade building, on the first floor, while the Publicity department has an additional office on the second floor for posters, signs, supplies, literature and other forms of "salesmen."

Speakers and publicity chairman are in service as follows:

PLANS TO KEEP WORKERS BUSY

Secretary Baker Explains War Contract Adjustments.

(Plans for an adjustment of the industrial situation which will complete the shift from war-time to peace-time requirements with the least possible inconvenience to manufacturers or wage-earners are here discussed by Secretary of War Baker. Mr. Baker's explanations are most reassuring and indicate why there need be no hesitancy on the part of employer or employee in giving the utmost support to the Victory Loan. Here is the outlook from Mr. Baker's viewpoint.)

By NEWTON D. BAKER,
Secretary of War.

When the armistice was signed on the 11th of November there were outstanding some seven billions of dollars of contracts in the War Department. The signing of the armistice made it, of course, obvious that a very large part of the war material thus under contract would not be needed, and the first question which the war department had to face was that of the cancellation of those contracts.

It was clear that if we simply took a knife and cut off the manufacturing facilities that were engaged in work for the War Department, sharply on the 11th day of November, we would close factories in every state and city of the Union, which would throw thousands of workmen out of employment, and, therefore, that it was imperative that a reasonable time be provided for those industries to reorganize themselves on a peace basis.

Therefore, a plan was devised by which, as the first step, we cut off overtime employment so as to reduce production without producing disorganization. The next step was to view this vast mass of contracts in an effort to find out how far the military necessities of the country would permit them to be reduced and how rapidly they might be reduced.

We have so far suspended operation upon contracts which would have cost five billion eight hundred and twenty-nine millions of dollars to complete; so that in the matter of saving, the War Department has suspended operations under contracts or has determined to cancel contracts which, in net effect, covered production to the extent of $3,900,000,000 of war materials.

That does not mean, of course, that that entire sum will be saved. It is involved in something over 19,000 separate contracts, and of those contracts we have already settled 4600, effecting a saving to the Government on the 4600 already settled of $131,000,000, while paying to the contractors, who still had some equity in the matter of new facilities created or materials in process of manufacture, the sum of $29,000,000.

The hope of the War Department is that, without disorganizing industry, without turning workers into the street, without congesting the labor market, and thereby disorganizing the industrial situation, we will be able to save a very large part of this total of nearly $6,000,000,000 involved in contracts for the production of war materials.

Obviously, with 19,000 contracts to readjust or cancel, either in whole or in part, it would have taken more than a lifetime, if we had undertaken by some central bureau here in Washington to review each contract separately and make a special determination about it.

So, instead of that, district boards have been established all through the country in the various bureaus of the War Department dealing with war supplies, so that a manufacturer in any city, whether of ordinance or quartermaster material does not have to come to Washington for adjustment of his contract. He goes to the local district board.

If he and the district board can agree upon the terms of the cancellation or modification of the contract, that agreement is written in the form of a recommendation and sent down to Washington for the Board of Claims, and is then passed upon by the Board of Claims of the bureau or division of Ordnance, Quartermaster, Signal Corps, or whatever it may be. Now, if they cannot agree there is another agency set up in Washington, known as the Board of Contract Adjustment, composed of three eminent men. So the contractor does not have to take the judgment of the local district board, but he can lay his matters before a disinterested tribunal here in Washington. Of course, he does not have to accept the decision of the Board of Contract Adjustment. If he prefers he can go to the Court of Claims and start litigation which is, however, always unfortunate, because of the length of time it takes; but that remedy is not closed to him.

We have had this thought in mind from the beginning, that the most important thing the War Department could do, so far as industry and commerce are concerned, is to bring about a speedy adjustment of these claims, in order that the people of this country who are engaged in industry and commerce may know exactly what they can expect in the way of payment from the Government, just how much they can rely upon in opening up their new business or reorganizing business, and to speedily set about doing it.

LOOK FOR GRAVE AND GOLD

Two Reasons Which Actuate Explorers Searching Among Santa Barbara Channel Islands.

Again the rugged and little-frequented Santa Barbara channel islands are being explored for the burial spot of Juan Cabrillo, the intrepid Spaniard who visited the California coast in the sixteenth century. The search centers in San Miguel Island, the property of J. P. Moore, a wealthy resident of Florida.

Cabrillo died on one of the islands, it appears reasonably certain, and San Miguel is generally believed to be the island where he met death. One legend has it that Cabrillo died of a fever, another that he met a violent death at the hands of a warrior from one of the Indian tribes then inhabiting the channel islands.

He is said to have been secretly buried at night in a cave, in a spot inaccessible except at low tide.

Not all the romance that is associated with San Miguel grows out of the supposed tragic death. For generations Californians have heard of the fabulous sums of gold hidden there by sea rovers.

Treasure is said to have been buried on the island by Sir Francis Drake, after he had stripped Spanish bullion-laden ships. Drake, so the legend runs, left hurriedly and neither returned nor gave a key to the secret cache.

Several of the Spanish and Mexican outlaws that overran southern California in the Spanish regime, and even after the Americans came, are said to have made the islands their meeting place and to have buried there a fortune in gold and silver coin.

KIEV WELL WORTH A VISIT

Capital of the Ukraine Remarkable Combination of Old and New Cities.

Kiev contains about five hundred thousand inhabitants, and comprises four distinct districts, which may also be called separate towns. Podol, the commercial quarter, skirts the river Dnieper, and above it, on a steep declivity, is Lipki, the residential quarter, and an enchanting spot in summer, with its handsome villas embowered in dark, luxuriant foliage.

North of that is Kiev proper, which contains the university and the cathedral of St. Sophia, a building erected in the eleventh century, but so constantly repaired and added to that it is now a huge and towering structure with more than a dozen large golden domes.

Here also are the theaters, hotels and shops, which are quite as modern as those of Petrograd or Moscow. Petchersk, the fourth district, is well worth seeing, for it is honeycombed with caves and catacombs that in olden days were used as places of refuge and as monastic cells, and where, during holy festivals, one can scarcely move through the dense crowds of pilgrims.

grims, of whom three hundred thousand annually visit this ancient and revered monastery.

Warships May Carry Mail.

Removing their side armor, protective decks, barbettes and guns would change battle cruisers into fine mail liners with plenty of room for passengers. That is the proposal which has the approval of the Swedish minister of marine for application to the Swedish navy's two battle warships. The vessels so modified would have 2,000 tons deadweight capacity with a displacement of 4,300 tons and a speed of 25 to 30 miles an hour. Sweden's navy numbers 69 warships of all kinds, all of which are well designed and constructed, but rather small for actual war purposes. This appears to be the first serious indication of a possible peaceful use for battle ships.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Each Joins the "Pipers."

Marshal Foch has acquired a British habit. The French do not generally smoke pipes. Day by day Marshal Foch saw Field Marshal Haig and other British generals in the vortex of the work calmly doing their work behind good high-backed briar pipes. Foch asked Haig what it was like to smoke a pipe. He bought an English one. He filled it under careful British military instruction. He began the attempt with energy and purposeful determination, but at first smoked more matches than tobacco. Now, however, he has mastered it and thoroughly enjoys a good briar pipe, which he has bought from an English firm.

Many Horses Stay "Over There."

Not all our fighters will return to the land of their birth. Most of the men—those that are living—will come home, but many of the horses will not, for there is great need of draft animals in the reconstruction work in France and Belgium, and there are plenty of war-worn horses that a few weeks or months of rest will restore to usefulness. The Red Star animal relief organization in New York is interesting itself in the pleasant task of getting the poor old war horses into fresh fields and pastures green.—Youth's Companion.

The Victor's Homecoming.

Sir Douglas Haig's Grenadier guard of honor at Charing Cross, when the man of the hour came home, was a particularly fine body of men, and from end to end of the lines there was hardly a man without wound stripes. Not a few of the distinguished ones, on the platform as they filed past the guard, standing side by side, showed a row of stripes between them.

Association of Ideas.

"Why do you object to the study of anatomy in the schools?"
"It is a very unpalatable digestion."
"So it is, but I have estimated the value of eating vegetables by their nutritive value and nearly everything I eat is a vegetable."
"I had come out of a doctor's prescription."

New THAI Argument Next Week

Judge D. P. McPherson has fixed Thursday, April 10, as the date for the hearing of argument on the motion for new trial in the case of Clarence K. Collins, convicted of the murder of George J. Bushman. A number of the stenographer's notes in this case are reduced and filed and the attorneys are preparing their arguments.

The notes in the trial of Charles C. Reinecker, also found guilty of murder in the first degree, for the murder of Bushman, have not yet been reduced and no date set for argument on the new trial motion in this case.

Local Board Closes Office.

The Local Board of Adams County before whom all registrations were made for the drafts closed office Monday. The two dozen or more boxes containing the records were shipped and a quarter of a ton of paper was disposed of to a local junk dealer. The work of this Board should be adequately recompensed by either State or Nation or both for no more patriotic, unselfish devotion to duty was shown in this locality than by the Local Board, and the work of Dr. Dalbey and other members of the Board deserve more than fine sounding compliments.

ARBOR DAY PROCLAMATION.

Governor Urges Tree Planting—School Grounds Should Have Trees.

Governor Sproul's proclamation, naming Friday, April 11, next week, and Friday, April 25, 1919, as Arbor Days is as follows:

"Whereas, The restoration, protection and utilization of forests is now recognized as a proper function of statecraft, the one important and imperative duty is to restore forests to every acre of land within the commonwealth not capable of producing a better crop. The forest products now required by our industries are obliged to be purchased from other regions. Nothing but wasted timber and neglected restoration prevents selling our own timber to our own people as once we did, millions of dollars worth every year, and

"Whereas, Much of the power of the future will be derived from falling water, the industries of the future will surely be required to depend upon this power. If the timber on the big highlands of the State is not restored, the tree-clad hills will be lacking that cover which should be there to retain the rains and melting snows. The water will pass out of the State in disastrous floods, leaving us at the most critical season of the year with insufficient water either for the production of power or for ordinary purposes; and

"Whereas, Having fought a victorious war we are now filled with the spirit of the memorial tree in honor of our soldier dead, victims of a great and cruel contest, held in tender memory by the public mind. It is a patriotic impulse to preserve the names of these heroes who made the supreme sacrifice, in a long-lived vigorous tree, capable of outliving the centuries, to bless those who are to come by its cooling shade and its added beauty to our land. For this high purpose no short-lived or puny trees should be taken. The lofty spirit of patriotism is not satisfied with anything but that of the most enduring character. Our native white oak, red oak, pin oak, scarlet oak, elm, sugar maple, black walnut, the pines and the spruces commend themselves for memorial purposes. The grounds about many of our schools are ample for tree-planting, and the pupils ought to be encouraged to plant memorial trees in honor of the heroes of the neighborhood. These children should also be made responsible for their proper care and protection. The experience had and the lesson so learned will be of enduring kind, serviceable to the pupils as well as helpful to the community.

"Therefore, I, William C. Sproul, Governor of the Commonwealth, in pursuance of the foregoing, and in recognition of the lofty and patriotic service to be rendered by tree-planting, do hereby set aside Friday, April 11, and Friday, April 25, 1919, as Arbor Days throughout the State. Two days are designated so that opportunity may be given to the pupils of schools with an early closing date to participate, which I commend to the pupils in our schools and to all our people, is of wise and generous character. In urging the observance of these Arbor Days throughout the State, I do so in the expectation that thousands of young trees will be started on their future growth to bless us in the years to come."

A Costly Fire.

Fire completely destroyed the wash-house on the farm recently purchased by Frank Redding from Harvey Bream near town early Tuesday morning. The farm had been tenanted by George Hemler who had moved to the A. J. Smith farm east of town on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Redding had moved in that same day and as late as ten o'clock when Mr. Redding came in with the last load of goods everything about the place was apparently in good order. However, about one o'clock a member of the household who occupied a room on the side of the house, next the wash-house, was awakened by the heat from the fire. By that time the blaze had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the building. The fact that the high wind took the flames away from the rest of the buildings likely prevented a more serious fire. Mr. Redding, having just occupied the place had put a lot of goods in the wash-house and these were entirely destroyed, among them being all of his year's supply of meat and over 200 pounds of lard.

bunch of girls to come out with us." "Yes, and I could die playing tennis. I think the courts are situated at such a wonderful place up by that darling lodge. I am sure that it is a better place than down by the willow trees. To tell the truth the courts are always crowded."

"I for my part like to play croquet, but of course we all like different sports. I could get a bunch of girls to play every evening when the ground is in good condition. I am sure this is a good advantage for it is better than running the streets in the evenings."

"I think it is a fine place to take small children early in the morning or toward evening and tell them stories under the trees. They do enjoy playing in the sand and on the swings. It is better for the child to be at such a place with a chaperon than to be playing out on the street where he or she is exposed to all kinds of danger."

"Yes, I am sure, mother, could not rather have us out there knitting or whatever we wish to do under the beautiful shady trees. It is away from the ding streets and we can breathe more air. The scenery is simply won't and our own can be blessed that we have such a nice place."

"The playground is just the thing for the boys, especially the boys of G. H. S. I have many a happy hour we spend watching a game from the very top row of the bleachers. Gee, I can certainly get interested in any kind of sport."

"Just wait, the grass is beginning to peep through and when it is pretty and green, and the park benches are all arranged, won't it be heavenly? The flowers will soon be in bloom and the trees will be green. Oh, you."

"I can't wait until we can walk out in the evenings, when the playground is all aglow with its many colored lights."

"Good gracious, girls, the way we talk it would be no wonder we would never reach the playground this afternoon. Here we are and me for a good time."

"Yes, and since I want to come out this evening I must not use all my strength this afternoon. It will simply be crowded to-night."

"Listen!!! If all the people of Gettysburg would take an interest as did these girls we can make a fine playground. I am sure it would not only be an advantage to just a few, but to all. Won't you do your part and get the town interested and they will all help. It is for the benefit of the old as well as the young. We cannot stand back and let one do all the work. To make this a success we must have the spirit of Gettysburg as a whole. We must co-operate and make the best of Kurtz's Playground."

Owners Are Better Guides than Specifications

Nothing our salesmen can say about the Willys-Knight motor car can be as convincing as the statements of Willys-Knight owners. The man who had driven a Willys-Knight car thousands of miles becomes so enthusiastic over the sleeve-valve motor that he is rarely ever content until he prevails upon his friends to profit by his experience. The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor is so ungrudging and unflagging in its performance that it has come to be known as the motor that always runs. The staunch allegiance of Willys-Knight owners has given rise to the expression—"Once a Willys-Knight owner always a Willys-Knight owner."

FAMOUS OLD ENGLISH FORT

Porchester Castle, Obsolete Now, Must Have Been Place of Great Strength in Its Day.

Far away, behind all that the majority of people know of Portsmouth (Eng.) harbor—the outer basin with the ships of all kinds and descriptions coming and going in it, from the great battle cruisers to the steamers plying to and fro from the Isle of Wight—far from all the bustle of the harbor side, at the extreme end of a great stretch of tidal water, backed by the long, low line of the downs, stands Porchester castle. Roman as its name denotes, Porchester is said to have been one of the nine fortresses built by the Romans to defend the British coasts against marauding pirates from across the North sea. However this may happen to be, the walls which face the huge expanse of mud flats at low tide and water at high tide are really the work of Roman builders, which is a great deal more than can be said for many of the so-called "Roman walls" in other places. Wonderful walls they are, too—Roman builders never did things by halves—fully ten feet thick and built of flint and concrete with courses of limestone slabs.

The strength of the place before artillery came into use, or against an enemy unprovided with it, must have been enormous, and its situation must have made it almost impregnable. The Normans recognized its value and Henry I added the great keep and many of the other buildings.

LINK WITH PREHISTORIC DAYS

Hoatzin Birds, Found in Guiana, Have Long Been a Subject of Study by Scientists.

Running on all fours; climbing with fingers and toes like monkeys; diving and swimming as skillfully as if they were denizens of the ocean, the baby Hoatzin birds, found in Guiana, perpetuate the prehistoric days when reptiles were the dominant beings. It can neither sing nor fly gracefully and its very presence is betrayed by its strong odor, but it is none the less of great importance in the bird world because of its strange prehistoric attributes.

The nests of the old birds are always built out over the water, frequently some 15 feet above the surface, and the young birds, with their wings turned back, not folded as is usual but up like a diver's hands, will dive cleanly from the nest into the water and swim like a fish. When they wish to return to the nest they climb on shore and walking on their feet and handlike ends of their wings will creep back to the tree and then climb like a monkey, using what is virtually the thumb and first fingers of their strange wings. They have a long neck and head far more reptilian than birdlike, and despite their lack of beauty many scientific expeditions have been sent to Guiana to photograph and study these birds, who represent all the ages of history from reptile to modern life.

WOULD REMAIN 'UNDER COVER'

Sergeant Had His Reasons for Not Making at That Time a "Full and Free Confession."

An American colonel in France was having difficulty with his wife. It was the headquarters safe. Its lock had jammed and one of his staff could open it. While they were struggling with it a negro servant came up to them apologetically.

"Cul'n'l," he said, "if I ain't intrudin' into dis head difficulty, I believes, sah, dat I might he'p yah."

"Yes?" said the colonel. "What do you suggest?"

"Cul'n'l," said the sergeant, "I suggests Co'p'l Hall."

"Corporal Hall? Why Corporal Hall?"

"Co'p'l Hall," the sergeant explained, under his voice, "was fo' foah years a bugglah."

They sent for Corporal Hall and Corporal Hall opened the safe.

"Well, sergeant," the colonel said, "I'm glad to know about Corporal Hall. I wish I'd known it sooner. It would have saved us a lot of time with that safe. And tell me, sergeant!—in case we may need to call on you some day—in what direction do your particular talents lie?"

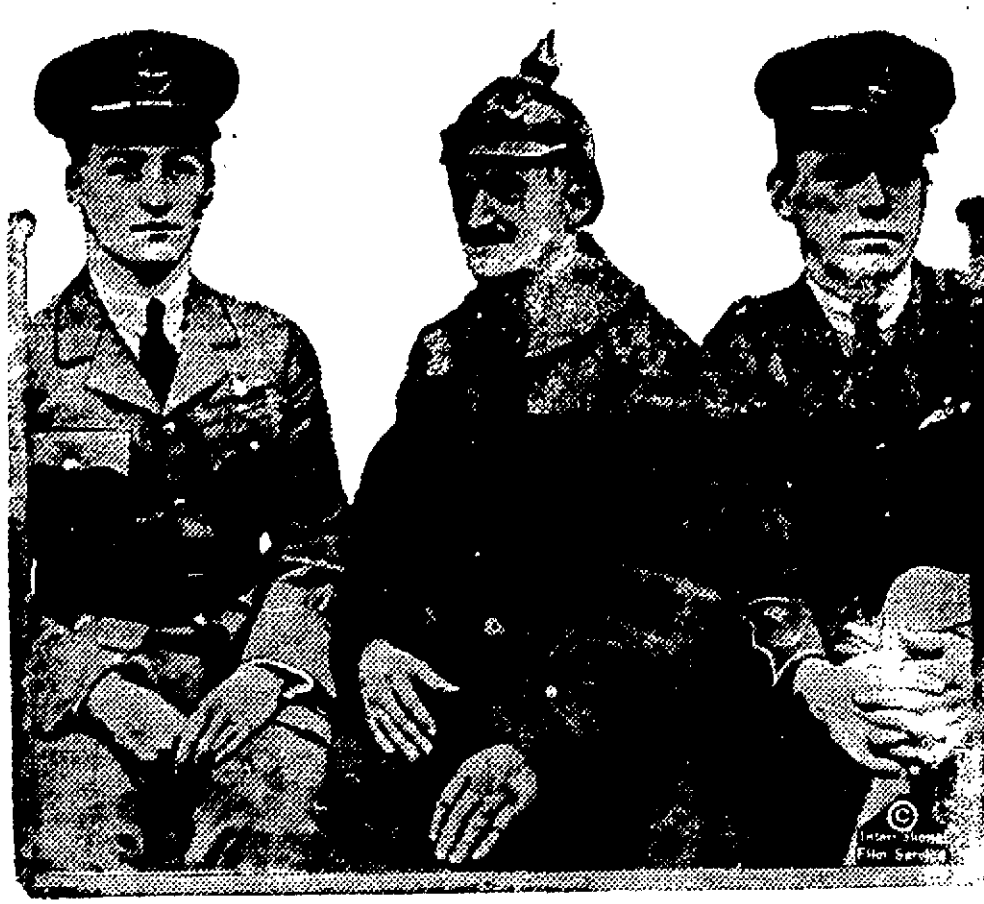

"Cul'n'l," the sergeant answered, "Ah doan' want to tell no lies. Stand in' as Ah does daily in de presence of mah Makeb, mos' doubtless Ah doan' want to tell no lies. But if de time comes when Ah kin he'p yah, sah, Ah'll make a full an' free confession, a full an' free confession, sah."—Ben E. Lindsey in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

DEATH OF A FAMOUS DUCK

Peggy of Rouen, N. J., Laid 325 Eggs in a Single Year, and Was Easily World's Champion.

The death of Peggy, the famous duck of Rouen, New Jersey, comes as a reminder to us that we would do well to follow the principles which guided the life of this excellent bird. Peggy was celebrated in two hemispheres as the champion egg-layer of the world, the New York Evening Post states. Peggy, in one year laid as many as 325 eggs. Yet, celebrated as she was, noted wherever eggs were laid or scrambled, head of her glorious profession, what was her attitude after we entered the war? Did she rush into print, airing her opinion as to what the president ought to do? Not at all. Despite numerous tempting offers from fowl fashions and other magazines, she refrained from utterance and continued contributing her daily drop to national victory. Even when the Germans opened their recent peace drive Peggy did not turn hysterical and demand that they at once surrender all the Strassburg geese. She, still in silence, went on with her lay. It is related of her that on the morning of her demise she quietly produced an egg, and, indicating her satisfaction with a feeble quack, keeled over and expired.

BARRED FROM THEIR NATIVE SHORE

Three officers of the British air service, but Americans by birth, have been barred from landing on their native shore by a peculiar ruling. Lieut. Edward Rutledge of Brooklyn, Lieut. R. K. Knapp of Brooklyn and Lieut. W. L. Haight of Chicago arrived at Boston on the transport Melita. Because of a ruling which bars all but returning American troops from landing, the three Americans must return to their starting point at Brest.

LED TO RESCUE BY DREAM

Tug Captain's Confidence in Vision He Had Proved Fortunate for Two Fishermen.

Guided by a dream, Capt. Adam Paczocha of a Lake Michigan tug found two men who had been drifting about helpless in a broken motor launch for four days. The rescue was just in time to save the men's lives, for the feet of one were frozen and the other's hands were frosted and they were exhausted from cold and hunger.

Captain Paczocha had his dream while taking a nap at his home in Milwaukee one afternoon. When he awoke he described to his family how he had seen a launch drifting about helpless in the storm-swept lake and how he had swung his boat alongside and saved two men.

"I'm going to find them," said the captain, after telling of the dream vision.

He set out the next morning and by mid-afternoon he had located the launch. The two men in the launch were George Goshgan and Joseph Budzicz, Jones Island fishermen who had met with misfortune while out hauling in their nets. Driven about by a sudden storm that arose on the lake they sought to make shore until the gasoline engine in the launch gave out. Then they drifted about helpless.

The rescued men's first request was for cigarettes. They had been unable to smoke for four days because their matches had become wet.

Thrill of Doing Things.

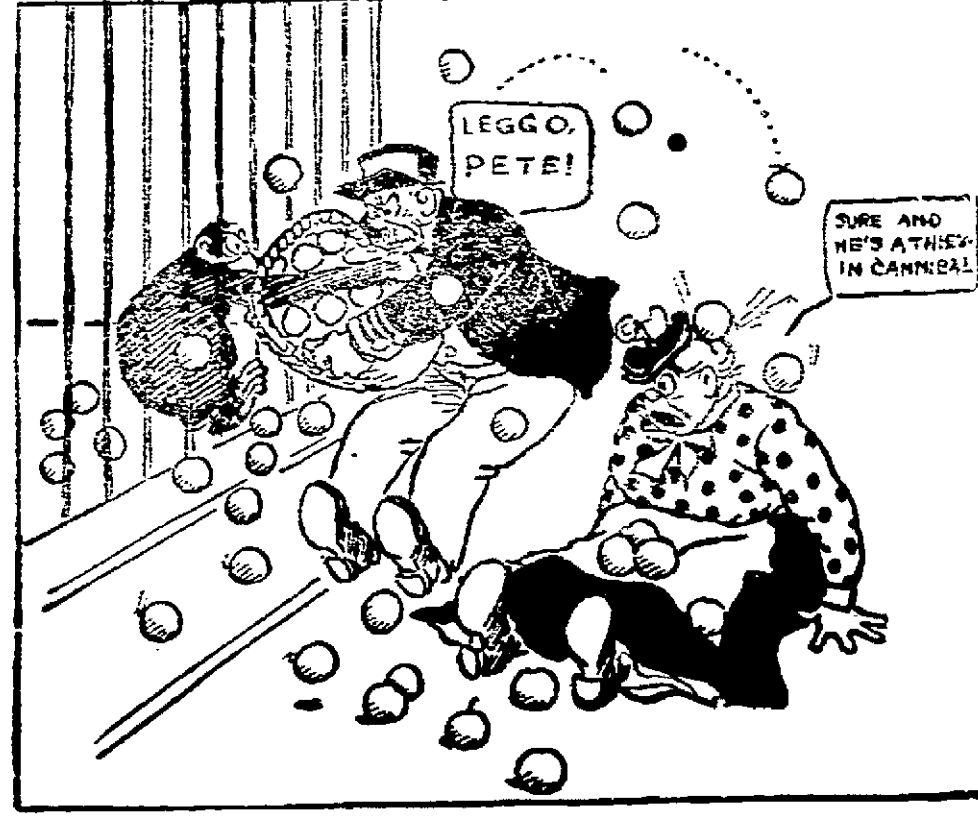

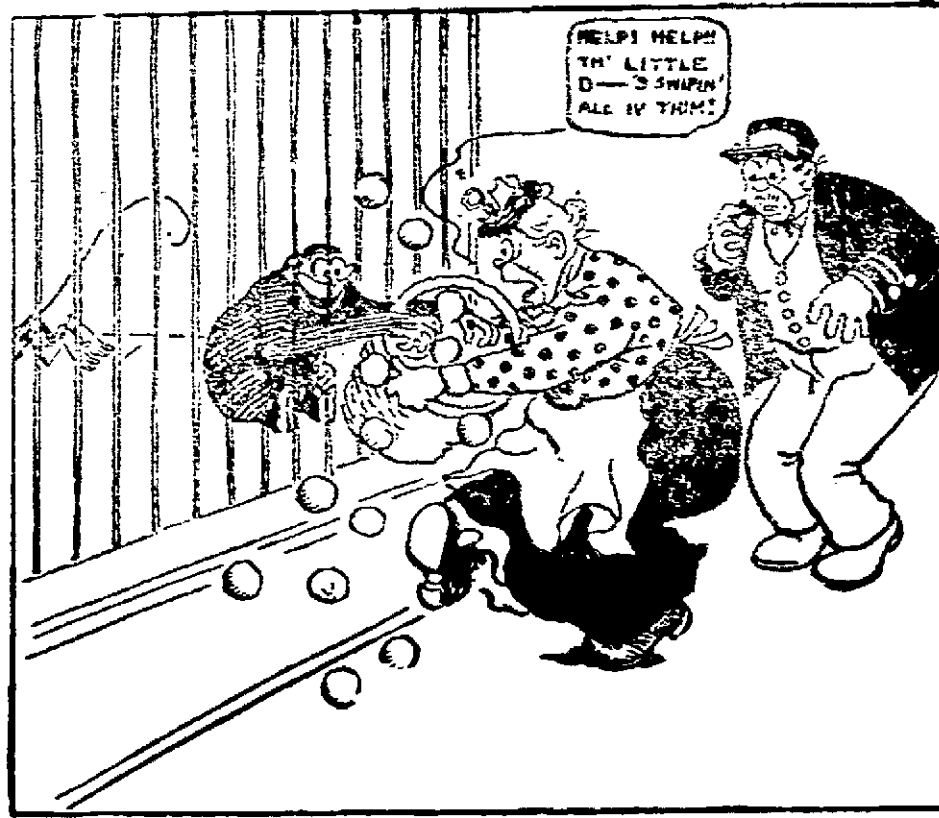

Life is made up of trials and satisfactions. The one is to keep up your muscle, and the other is to keep up your morale. The one sets tasks that try the fibers of your nature; the other bestows the mental laurel that marks consciously won victory. The whole process begets thrills that enhance ideas of achievement. The very idea of doing seems to carry with it the sense of worth and fitness. Instead of feeling yourself driven by the stress of compulsion you feel like an explorer in new regions. Each thing done adds to the joy of doing as it brings facility and smoothness of operation. The sum of things attempted and finished tells a story of joy known only to the fellow who has felt the thrill of doing things. The biggest challenge to the healthy man is the chance to do.

England's Big Mistake.

On the 8th of March in 1765 the house of lords in England passed the stamp act, which led to the famous Boston tea party, the first militant act of the Revolution.

The English treasury had been drained by the Seven Years' war and the country needed money. The people of England were already taxed to the limit and King George and the English parliament decided that the most expedient way to raise money was to tax the American colonists and to establish the principle that the colonists must pay taxes to the crown even though they were not allowed representation in the English parliament.

Mohammed Surrenders

By ARCHEY CAMERON NEW

Because it was a accomplishment, Henry Foster looked well. It would have been a different story had he not been a bit of a fighter, but he took the job in such a manner. For it distracted time and thought from the achievement of a greater thing—human success.

Now, Henry was not a kill-joy, and he aspired to wealth not because of his love of money, but for love of Jean Thomas. Knowing this, Hal Foster looked wonderingly at his partner, as he entered the office to see Henry glowering at the telephone mouthpiece.

"But, dearest," Henry protested irritably, "I can't go. We're checking up on the shipments for November."

"You mean that?" came the pouting answer. "I believe you're money-mad." "Jean," Henry challenged her sharply, "did it ever occur to you that we might need money after we're married?" Hal Foster withdrew from the office hastily.

"I'm not a fool, Henry," she replied coldly. "Good-by."

"The devil!" yelled Henry, wrathfully, slapping up the receiver and turning to Foster, who re-entered. "Hal, she's the limit. Wants me to go to the Summers' dance tonight. Most unreasonable girl I ever knew."

"That wouldn't make a good love song, kiddo," admonished his partner, solemnly. "Aren't you going?"

"Of course not," and every minute Henry seemed to grow madder. "Dye know, Hal, there's times when I doubt I love her. She's got a head full of foolishness and nothing else." Hal

"Aren't You Going?"

There was no reply, and Henry plunged viciously into a pile of papers at his elbow.

Still wrathful, Henry worked late into the evening, but on his way home made a detour, and passing in front of the Summers' home, peeped inquisitively into the parlor. The object of his search was smiling gayly and chatting volubly in the center of a group of men and girls.

"That's all she thinks about," Henry assured himself as he walked away, and on retiring to his room ten minutes later gazed dubiously at Jean's picture on his mantel. Then he frowned, turned out the light and jumped into bed.

He worked the next two nights, and the day following, somewhat chastened in spirit, sent Jean a bouquet of flowers followed an hour later by another call on the phone. It was Jean thanking him sweetly for the gift and inquiring if he would put aside business for a single night to go to Margaret Wendell's homecoming reception.

"Really, dear, I can't," he pleaded. "This is the busy season in the commission business. Can't you understand? Why can't you come downtown and have dinner with me? That would be—"

"Impossible!" she snapped furiously. "and, I do understand. A nine-hour day is long enough. Surely, you won't work every night after we're married?"

"Not every night," he replied, soothingly. "But it's for you, can't you understand? Now be a good girl and come downtown to dinner."

"I won't," she refused, flatly. "I'm not going to chase you. I won't see you until you come to me."

"Then you won't see me," Henry snarled rashly. "Good-by."

During the following month Henry felt sorely tempted to make peace with her, but the terms of peace were impossible. Business required even more of his time than ever, and Hal's too. The firm was facing an unexpected situation. Shipments were coming in more slowly, and in sales, too, their figures fell well below par.

he called it. Today, Fink and Wellman turned me down cold. Said the Fulton County Growers' association were filling his orders quicker and cheaper. What's to be done?"

Henry scratched his head thoughtfully, then rose uncertainly and grabbed his hat.

"I'm off for Fultonville, the county seat," he announced from the door. "It's a dull old place, but I'll smoke that crowd out—see if I don't."

Early the following morning Henry presented himself at an office over the Fulton National Bank, on the main street of that quiet village, with the neat sign on it, "Fulton County Growers' Association."

"Want to see your boss," he announced to an alert clerk, who rose from his typewriter to take Henry's card. He disappeared into an inner office and presently emerged.

"Can't be seen," he announced, crisply. "Too busy. Call tomorrow."

"But I must see him," protested Henry, scowling. "I made a special trip down here. I can't kill time around here until tomorrow."

"But you can't see him," came the answer, accompanied by a fleeting smile, "until tomorrow. There's a show in town tonight. And a dance at the hotel. Maybe you might go to one of—"

"Bother dances and shows!" he snapped, and left the office indignantly; but the quietude and inaction of the long afternoon made him reconsider, and at 7:30, after a good dinner, he stood in his room and surveyed himself in his evening dress before the mirror. Then he went downstairs into the ballroom. Pausing for a moment at the door, he glanced about him and then his heart pounded wildly. Was that—just then she turned, and as their eyes met he advanced toward her.

"Jean," he almost shouted in delight. "Is it really you?"

"No other." She gave him a cool impersonal smile. "Are you dancing?"

"If I may have one with you," he answered quickly, and as the music began they sprang into step with their old usual grace. After the dance he led her into one of the small parlors, and she sat down happily.

"That was fine," she enthused. "Worthy all my trouble to get up the stairs."

"Did you get—this—up?" he demanded, dubiously.

"Why, certainly," she replied, smiling at her program. "With help, of course. There's so much to be done, you know. Sorry I couldn't see you today."

"But I didn't call—" he started to answer, puzzled.

"Yes, you did, too," she answered, enjoying his puzzlement. "My clerk brought your card in to me."

Henry opened his mouth in absolute amazement, then faced her resolutely. "You are—"

"The Fulton County association—yes." Her eyes twinkled mischievously. "Otherwise known as a mountain of flowers and fluff."

"Oh, I didn't mean that—" he started to protest, but she cut him off.

"Oh, yes, you did," she rejoined, quickly. "But it wasn't so. And I mean to prove it to you. You wanted the mountain to come to Mohammed, but I wouldn't do it. I wanted you to know that I—"

"But this dance," he whispered, huskily, for his voice had gone from shock. "You had time to arrange this—and work besides."

"On an eight-hour-day schedule," she answered. "Well, what do you think of me now?"

"I think," he began, gazing at her hungrily, then almost shouted, "I surrender—at your terms. Where—er—shall I lay down my arms?"

"Here," pointing to her two satiny shoulders, and he met her terms completely.

GRAND OPERA IS EXPENSIVE

Cost of Production Has Been Figured at $10,000 a Night in New York City.

A very interesting article appeared in the New York Tribune recently with regard to the cost of opera. This article, written by H. E. Krehbiel, shows during the German period, that is from 1886 to 1889, the total of something like $5,000 a night, during which period the basic price of a seat in the parquet was $5.

Then the cost, under Grau, followed by Conried, rose. The present average cost of giving opera, Mr. Krehbiel informs us as he told, is about $10,000 a night, partly owing to the greatly increased salaries of artists, the orchestra; in fact, everything had gone up greatly, even before the war.

When those who like to go to the opera realize that every time the curtain is raised at the Metropolitan it means $10,000 to the management, though personally I have heard the figure quoted higher, they will see how it was absolutely necessary to raise the price of seats. They will also see that inasmuch as the receipts sometimes fall well below the cost on many nights, the nights on which there is an overflow must help balance things.

The house holds just so much, I believe, when it is jammed at high prices as to bring the receipts to $14,000.—Mephisto in Musical America.

Angels' Wish.

Of the fighting soldiers who won the war, I should think General Birdwood is the most important. Here is his latest story. One day, in Gallipoli, he came across an Anzac washing himself in a bucket of water. "Well," said the general, "are you having a wash?" The soldier replied, "Yes, sir, but I wish I was a bloomer!"

Warmer Winters 40 Years Ago.

There was more sunshine and less snow throughout most of the United States during the winter just passed than ever before in the memory of the present generation. In only one section of the country—the plateau region—was the weather severe, and there low temperature records were established. Snow falling in November in the plateau region remained throughout the winter.

Everywhere else, reports to the Weather Bureau show precipitation was so light and the temperature so high that snow lay on ground only in a few isolated instances more than a day or two.

Heretofore low temperatures have prevailed during winters when there was a light fall of snow, with the result that crops, especially of winter wheat and oats, have suffered. During the past winter, however, the combination of light snow precipitation and high temperatures have resulted in the rapid and sturdy growth of grains. Generally the temperatures over virtually the entire country were from five to ten degrees above normal.

Frequent warm rains and absence of severe "cold snaps" also helped crops. Only in some districts of the northeast was there any damage worth recording, due to freezing and thawing with insufficient snow cover. Continued good weather recently has been helpful, especially to fruit-bearing plants and trees and a bumper crop is promised. Grazing lands likewise, have benefited.

Bureau statistics show that the rather general notion that the past winter actually was the mildest ever known instead of merely one of the mildest, is erroneous. The winter of 1875-76 was considerably warmer than was the winter of 1877-78. The winter of 1881-82 was about like that just past, and in 1889-90 it was considerably warmer in the section east of the Mississippi River. The winter of 1905-06 fell slightly short of being as mild as that of 1918-19.
